

Program Area: TERMINOLOGY Department: B

If Revision, Section(s) Revised: P, Q

Date Last Revised: JANUARY 1997

C: CRIM 252 D: SOCIOLOGICAL EXPLANATIONS OF E: 3

Subject & Course No. Semester Credits

will critically examine the sociological, socio-cultural and socio-psychological theories such as the ecological theories, conflict theories, control theories, and symbolic interactionist theories. Some of the specific theories subjected to critical analysis will be the interactionist theories, social structure theories, and social control theories. The course will also examine the relationship between culture and crime, and the role of social structure in the development of crime.

Calendar Descriptor: This course explains the sociological, socio-cultural and socio-psychological explanations of criminal behavior. Some of the specific theories subjected to critical analysis will be the interactionist theories, social structure theories, and social control theories. The course will also examine the relationship between culture and crime, and the role of social structure in the development of crime.

Allocation of Contact Hours to Types of Instruction: H Course Prerequisites: SOC 125

Primary Methods of Instructional Delivery and/or Learning Settings

Course Corequisites: NONE

This Course is a Prerequisite for: NONE Course for which this Course is a Corequisite: NONE

Number of Weeks per Semester: 14 Weeks Maximum Class Size: 35

Course No

Subject and

Methods of Instruction:

Objectives: Method

This course will provide students with the following:

- lectures
- audio-visual materials including video
- small group discussions
- research projects